

Authoritative Numismatic Reference Presidential Medal Of Appreciation Award Medals 1958 1963

Authoritative Numismatic Reference: Presidential Medal of Appreciation Award Medals (1958-1963)

The world of numismatics, the study and collection of coins, medals, and paper money, holds a fascinating niche: Presidential awards. This article delves into the authoritative numismatic references surrounding the Presidential Medal of Appreciation, specifically focusing on those awarded between 1958 and 1963. This period represents a significant era in American history, and understanding the nuances of these medals requires a deep dive into official records, expert opinions, and careful examination of the medals themselves. We'll explore the medal's design, its historical significance, its numismatic value, and the best resources for authentication and grading.

Understanding the Presidential Medal of Appreciation (1958-1963)

The Presidential Medal of Appreciation, while not as widely known as the Medal of Honor or the Presidential Medal of Freedom, holds significant historical value. Awarded by the President of the United States, it recognizes exceptional contributions and service to the nation, though the specific criteria varied over time. The period between 1958 and 1963 witnessed a significant geopolitical climate, including the Cold War, the Space Race, and the burgeoning Civil Rights Movement. Therefore, the recipients of the medal during this era often reflect these turbulent yet transformative times. While precise records for all recipients aren't always publicly accessible, dedicated research within numismatic archives and official government documents can uncover valuable information.

Design Variations and Identifying Features

The design of the Presidential Medal of Appreciation likely underwent subtle changes during this period. Variations in the striking, the metal composition (often silver or bronze), and even minor details in the inscription can significantly influence its numismatic value.

Authenticating these medals requires expert knowledge and potentially the use of specialized magnification tools and reference materials to pinpoint these subtle nuances. Many collectors meticulously document these variances, creating valuable databases and photographic records to aid in identification.

Historical Context and Significance of Recipients

Connecting the medals to their recipients adds immense depth to their numismatic significance. Researching the individuals who received the Presidential Medal of Appreciation between 1958 and 1963 allows for a deeper understanding of the political, social, and economic currents of the time. This research may involve exploring archival records, biographical information, and historical accounts to paint a comprehensive picture of the awardee's contributions to American society. For example, finding a medal awarded to a key figure in the early space program adds a layer of excitement and potentially increases its value for collectors focused on that historical period.

Numismatic Value and Market Trends

The numismatic value of a Presidential Medal of Appreciation from 1958-1963 hinges on several factors. The rarity of the medal, its condition (graded using standards such as those from the American Numismatic Association), and the historical significance of the recipient all play critical roles. A pristine medal awarded to a highly influential figure commands a much higher price than a heavily worn or damaged medal awarded to a lesser-known recipient. Understanding current market trends and consulting with reputable numismatic experts before buying or selling such a medal is crucial.

Authoritative Numismatic References and Resources

Establishing the authenticity and provenance of any historical artifact, including a Presidential Medal of Appreciation, is paramount. Several resources provide essential information:

- Numismatic Journals and Publications: Reputable publications such as The Numismatist and specialized journals often publish articles on presidential medals, providing valuable insights and authentication guidance.
- Auction Catalogues: Major numismatic auction houses meticulously document the medals they offer, providing detailed descriptions, provenance information, and past sale records.
- Expert Appraisers: Consulting experienced and reputable numismatic appraisers is crucial for accurate authentication and valuation. Their expertise ensures informed decisions when dealing with such valuable items.
- Online Numismatic Databases: While exercising caution is essential, several online databases provide information and images of various medals, enabling cross-referencing and comparison.

Conclusion

The Presidential Medal of Appreciation, specifically those awarded between 1958 and 1963, represents a captivating intersection of history and numismatics. Their value extends beyond monetary worth; they serve as tangible links to a significant period in American history. Thorough research, access to authoritative numismatic references, and the guidance of experienced professionals are crucial for appreciating and preserving these important pieces of history. Collectors should remember that diligent research and verification are critical in ensuring authenticity and making informed decisions regarding these unique historical artifacts.

FAQ

Q1: How can I verify the authenticity of a Presidential Medal of Appreciation?

A1: Authenticating such a medal requires careful examination of its physical characteristics, comparing it to known examples using reputable resources, and potentially seeking professional appraisal from a certified numismatist. Closely inspect the metal, engravings, and markings for consistency with known examples. Discrepancies should raise red flags. Photographic comparisons with archival images or reputable numismatic publications can also prove useful.

Q2: What factors influence the value of these medals?

A2: The medal's condition (grading), its rarity, the recipient's historical significance, and overall market demand all significantly impact its value. A pristine medal awarded to a prominent historical figure commands a higher price than a damaged medal from a lesser-known recipient.

Q3: Where can I find more information on recipients of the Presidential Medal of Appreciation during this period?

A3: Government archives, historical societies, and university libraries often hold records of Presidential awards. Biographical information on recipients can be found through these channels, adding historical context and value to the medal. Online genealogical databases may also provide valuable information.

Q4: Are there any known fakes or reproductions of these medals?

A4: As with any collectible item, counterfeit medals exist. Careful examination and professional authentication are crucial to avoid purchasing a forgery. Expert appraisal is highly recommended, particularly for high-value medals.

Q5: What resources are best for determining the market value of these medals?

A5: Auction records from reputable numismatic auction houses, consultation with experienced numismatic appraisers, and tracking prices on specialized online marketplaces can help in determining the market value. Keep in mind that values can fluctuate based on market trends and demand.

Q6: Can I insure a Presidential Medal of Appreciation?

A6: Yes, you can insure such a valuable collectible. Contact your homeowner's or renter's insurance provider, or a specialized collector's insurance company, to discuss coverage options. Accurate valuation from a reputable numismatist will be required for adequate insurance coverage.

Q7: What is the best way to store and preserve a Presidential Medal of Appreciation?

A7: Store the medal in a protective case or sleeve made of archival-quality materials to shield it from dust, moisture, and scratches. Avoid exposure to extreme temperatures or direct sunlight. Proper storage ensures the long-term preservation of its value and historical significance.

Authoritative Numismatic Reference: Presidential Medal of Appreciation Award Medals 1958-1963

The era between 1958 and 1963 witnessed a significant change in the appearance and production of the Presidential Medal of Appreciation. This paper explores into the authoritative numismatic references essential for accurately determining and valuing these intriguing artifacts of American heritage. Understanding these medals needs more than just a superficial glance; it entails a thorough knowledge of their progression and the details that distinguish genuine medals from fakes.

The primary challenge rests in the scarcity of a single, all-encompassing reference dedicated solely to these medals. Instead, collectors must utilize a range of materials, each presenting incomplete data. This necessitates a systematic technique to research, integrating information from multiple venues.

One crucial beginning point is the inventories and price guides published by major numismatic groups like the American Numismatic Association (ANA). While these works may not consistently devote a substantial portion to the Presidential Medal of Appreciation, they commonly include pertinent listings within their broader range of presidential awards. Offering close consideration to the narratives, characteristics, and pictures is critical.

Furthermore, specialized numismatic magazines and online groups devoted to awards and medals provide invaluable information. These venues frequently feature reports by specialists in the field, sharing their knowledge on verification, grading, and appraisal. Proactively engaging in these forums can offer access to a abundance of combined knowledge.

Another essential resource is the analysis of sale catalogs. By reviewing the details and images of medals sold at respected auctions, collectors can obtain a feeling of current values and identify differences in state and design. Such research requires a critical eye for accuracy and an knowledge of likely forgeries.

Finally, referring to with skilled numismatists and dealers can demonstrate invaluable. Their expertise in identifying medals and appraising their cost can avoid enthusiasts from making costly mistakes.

In closing, developing an reliable numismatic reference for Presidential Medal of Appreciation award medals from 1958 to 1963 demands a comprehensive method. By integrating information from multiple sources, and leveraging the expertise of experienced professionals, numismatists can build a complete grasp of these significant pieces of American heritage.

Frequently Asked Questions (FAQs):

Q1: Where can I find images of these medals?

A1: Internet archives like those of the ANA, along with market catalogs and specialized numismatic websites, often contain pictures of the Presidential Medal of Appreciation.

Q2: How can I tell if a medal is genuine?

A2: Thorough inspection of the medal's characteristics, including material, mass, marks, and engraving, is essential. Contrasting it with images from trustworthy materials is also essential. Expert opinion may be needed.

Q3: What factors influence the value of these medals?

A3: Factors such as condition (including any damage), rarity, provenance (documented chain of ownership), and general desirability all impact to the medal's current price.

Q4: Are there any books specifically about these medals?

A4: While no single book is solely dedicated to Presidential Medals of Appreciation from 1958-1963, pertinent details can be discovered in broad numismatic guides and specialized books on awards and decorations.

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/slide/945T67Y/324T1715Y1/MD/mallika__manivannan_thalaiviyn_nayagan.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/book/59710VE/003708100926/EPDF/2011_jetta_tdi_owners_manual.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/ebook/003708/5B2926F/TXT/cracking_ssat-isee-private-preparation.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/ppt/003708/49551X402Q/EBOOK/study_guide_steril-processing_tech.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/ppt/003708/E8378G8/RTF/kunci-jawaban-advanced_accounting_fifth_edition.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/slide/003708/33108121PS/BOOK/the_elements_of_fcking_style_a_helpful_parody_by_baker-chris_hansen_jacob_published_by-st_martins_griffin_2011.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/slide/71628W058W/90948WW/PDF/federal_fumbles_100_ways_the_government_dropped_the_ball_vol_2_2016.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/journal/5052A2O/3118A26O98/TEXT/2013_tiguan-owners_manual.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/chap/45P380K/100926/ITUNE/manual_eject_macbook.pdf

https://www.backpackingmatt.com/book/R8412X8/R4134X7182/MD/2007_ford_ranger-xlt_

repair-manual.pdf